

SECRETARY HAS FAULT TO FIND

Taft Makes His Objections To Action Of The Panama Canal Commission Public.

CONGRESS HAS THE REPORT TODAY

Secretary Says That Shonts And His Fellow Directors
Exceeded Their Authority In Selling Railroad Bonds.

[Special by Scripps-McRae.]
Washington, Jan. 8.—Secretary Taft felt constrained to administer a severe rebuke to Mr. Shonts and the government officials who are directors of the Panama railroad in a letter to President Roosevelt accompanying the reports of the canal commission and the president of the Panama railroad, which were sent to congress today. Two particular transgressions failed to meet the secretary's approval. One was the selling of the railroad bonds. It appears that the directors of the road, to meet obligations, decided to sell 625 $1,000 bonds. They did so without consulting either Secretary Taft or President Roosevelt. The secretary says the policy is a doubtful one and should not have been done without first consulting higher authority. Secretary Taft, by direction of President Roosevelt, ordered Shonts to repurchase the bonds, which he did. Secretary Taft said: "The executive officers of the road have been advised of the error and hereafter they will not act similarly until after consultation." The other transaction is in connection with the cancellation of the commissary contract which was awarded to J. E. Markel of Omaha. Of Shonts he says: "The president and directors of the railroad were supported in their position by the advice of your own officers, and it is in order to prevent a departure from this principle in the future." Secretary Taft lays stress upon the good motives of the president and the directors, saying that his only objection is that they exceeded their authority. President Roosevelt has endorsed Taft's report, saying that he approved of the actions and recommendations.

The President sent in his communication to congress praising the work of the canal commission and denouncing its detractors, declaring that every charge, no matter by whom made, has been investigated and found to be false. He tells what has been done and giving this reason for his belief the canal will be completed sooner than was anticipated.

BELOIT MAY HAVE A YEAR OF REST NOW

Probability Is That The Line City
Will Have No Summer Fair
This Year

Beloit will probably have no fair next summer, says the Beloit News. It is understood that the stockholders of the Beloit Interstate Fair and Driving association do not expect to continue the annual shows any longer and that they expect to take action to this effect at their annual meeting next Wednesday. Although the officers of the association have made no public statement regarding their intentions about continuing the fair, it is reported on what is considered good authority that this move is being planned. The reason for not continuing the fair is not that it was unsuccessful last year, for the association said to have come out even or better. It is argued, however, that if large profits are not made in a year when there is no bad weather there would probably be a deficit in cases where there should be one. The association is said to feel that now that it can quit even it had better do so. It is not known what will be done with the property of the association if it is no longer used for fair purposes.

WESTERN SHOE CO. WILL REMAIN HERE

Stock of Concern Doubled to $50,000 and Factory Reopens
This Morning.

All fears of local people regarding the proposed removal of the Western Shoe company from this city will be set at rest by the announcement that the stock of the concern has been doubled by local capital and the factory reopened this morning after the regular end of the year repairs and inventory. The company was about a year ago incorporated for $25,000 and some seven hundred pairs of shoes were being manufactured every week. The demand for the product of the factory grew and the owners sought to enlarge their output, but were handicapped by a lack of capital. The company did not wish to move, but bonuses were offered by other towns and Milton and Milton Junction attempted to secure the factory jointly. The raising in Janesville of $25,000 for stock retained the plant and within the next few weeks it will be running with double the force and double the output of former days. A number of men were put at work this morning and within the next week many more workers, both men and girls, will be given employment which will last through the year. The total force will number between forty and fifty and it is expected that between twelve and fifteen hundred pairs of shoes will be produced weekly.

Italian Queen's Birthday

Rome, Jan. 8.—The birthday of the Queen was celebrated today throughout Italy. The King and the Queen seem to gain in popularity every year, principally owing to their simple, democratic ways. The Queen's birthday in the royal family is not a state occasion, but is celebrated in the most quiet and unostentatious manner, as is customary among people of the middle classes. Last year the royal family celebrated the day by an old-fashioned picnic out in the woods. This year the day was quietly observed by the royal family at the royal castle.

COLORADO BOOSTING POULTRY INDUSTRY

Chicken Raising Shown by Census to Be More Profitable Than Other Agriculture.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Denver, Colo., Jan. 8.—One of the remarkable features of the exhibition of poultry, which was opened at the Coliseum today, is the fact that the Denver chamber of commerce is offering twenty-five silver loving cups as trophies to exhibitors, who win the first prizes in the various classes. The poultry industry in this state has received a decided boost recently by reason of the fact that the United States census showed that poultry raising is more profitable per acre than any other form of agriculture. To still further encourage the development of this valuable industry the Denver chamber of commerce has decided to offer these silver loving cups in addition to the regular prizes offered for the most meritorious exhibits.

GIVES MONEY TO STIFLE BAD BILLS

Retiring President of Life and Trust Company Admits Having Influenced Legislation in Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 8.—While denying unpleasant rumors from New York about the manner in which the affairs of the Provident Life and Trust company had been conducted, Samuel B. Shipley, the retiring president of that organization, admitted that the company had influenced legislation at Harrisburg.

The President, Mr. Shipley, said, paid last year to Martin E. Olmsted, one of the leaders of the Harrisburg bar and a United States congressman, $7,500 for using his influence to have two unfavorable insurance bills "forgotten" left buried in committees. It also has paid, for a number of years, a salary of $2,000, outside of his regular commissions, to William J. Scott, one of its agents, for staying in Harrisburg while the legislature has been in session, looking out for bills that might affect the company and having them killed.

But Mr. Shipley declared, while admitting these things, that they were done openly and legitimately; were done solely for the benefit of the policyholders in the Provident, and that not a cent of money had been paid to legislators.

Mr. Olmsted and Mr. Scott are gentlemen of the highest integrity," he said. "It was known to them that this company would not tolerate the payment of a single $5 bill to a legislator and I am sure that what they did was entirely aboveboard and legitimate."

The first sub-station to the Sheboygan postoffice will open Monday. This addition was made necessary owing to the large increase in population within the last year.

SOUTHERN WIDOW PITIES HETTY GREEN

Southern Woman After Visit Says Financial Wielder is Tired and Hearted.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 8.—After visiting Hetty Green of New York in an effort to negotiate a loan of $50,000, Mrs. Minnie Hogan, a woman broker of Atlanta, says she would not change places with the woman millionaire for all her wealth.

Mrs. Hogan wanted Mrs. Green to loan $50,000 on $250,000 worth of railway securities. "No," said Mrs. Green; "I will not consider placing any money on outside railroad securities, but if you have something to offer in the way of first class 4 or 4 1/2 per cent real estate securities I will be pleased to consider it."

Mrs. Hogan says: "Mrs. Green then asked me if I was a widow and when I said yes, she spoke of the death of her husband. She looked at my dress and remarked:

"That is a pretty dress; what did it cost you? Where did you buy it?" "Why, this dress is one of the satin foulards that was on a special sale at one of the department stores and I think I paid something like $10 for it," I replied.

"Well," she said, "I thought so; it is pretty and becoming." "Then we turned to my satchel, which had been given as a birthday present. I remarked it was too fancy for me; and she said it was pretty. Then she said:

"You know I always have cleaned my dresses with ammonia." "I replied: 'Why, Mrs. Green, I have done that all my life.' She turned and looked up at me inquiringly and remarked:

"You know if I were not so busy I would take you out to lunch." Mrs. Green impressed me as a tired, heartsome old woman, seeking sympathy, and there I was, a woman with not $100 at my command, feeling deep sympathy for a woman worth nearly $100,000,000, and I would not exchange places with her for all her millions."

The damage done by the collision of the Orinoco with the English street bridge at Sheboygan will not exceed $50.

BABCOCK LEADS HOUSE REVOLTS

Congressman From Third District Claims To Have Lined Up Sixty-Seven Republicans.

JOIN HANDS WITH THE DEMOCRATS

Coalition Forces Plan To Defeat Philippine Tariff Bill And Statehood Bill Which Were Agreed Upon.

[Special by Scripps-McRae.]
Washington, Jan. 8.—A great insurrection among republican members of the house has been organized by Representative Babcock of Wisconsin. It is probably the greatest revolt that ever has threatened the discipline of the republican party in legislative affairs.

It was not until Saturday afternoon that Speaker Cannon was informed of the serious aspects of the situation. He has been awakened to a full realization of the problem which has been prepared for him by Representative Babcock and has taken off his coat. Before the smoke of battle rises Mr. Babcock and his lieutenants will appreciate what it means to rebel against the President, the speaker and their own party organization.

Outline of Agreement.
With a full attendance on both sides, the republicans have a majority of 110 in the house. For the democrats to control the house on a full vote, at least fifty-three republicans must desert their party and join them. Representative Babcock claims that sixty-seven republicans have agreed to form a coalition with the democrats to defeat the Philippine tariff bill and the statehood bill as agreed upon by the republican caucus.

The agreement which the insurgents have offered the democrats is this: Enough republican votes will be produced to control the house with the support of the democrats to amend the statehood bill so as to give the people of Arizona and New Mexico a separate vote upon statehood to determine for themselves whether the two territories shall be united and admitted into the Union as one state, and to increase the duty upon Philippine sugar and reduce the differential upon refined sugar coming into the United States.

Lobby Is Powerful.
The real object of the insurgents is to prevent the admission of Arizona and New Mexico to statehood.

The lobby to prevent the admission of Arizona and New Mexico is powerful. Mining stock has been distributed widely among congressmen. It is not asserted that it has been used as a bribe, but congressmen have been induced by prospects of lucrative returns to make investment, and in violation of their oath of office these men shortly will be called upon to vote on a proposition in which they are interested personally.

There has been no revision or change in the assessments of mining and railroad properties in the territories for sixteen years, and the values upon which payment is made are only a fraction of their true worth. The mining and railroad men in the two territories oppose statehood under any and all conditions.

Want No Differential.
The democrats who favor free trade with the Philippines look upon the pending tariff bill as a step in the right direction, but they have agreed to join Mr. Babcock and his insurgent band to prevent the duty on sugar being cut to 25 per cent of the Dingley rates, provided the Republicans will wipe out the differential on refined sugar.

The grave offense of Representative Babcock and his associates is found in the fact that they propose to defeat the first two of the president's recommendations to come before congress.

For more than one term Mr. Babcock has been kept in congress through the efforts of his party organization. He always has a fight at home, and now the speaker is, done with him.

It is denied positively that Mr. Babcock has sixty-seven Republicans pledged. The speaker and other house leaders are making a personal poll and find many members who, after agreeing to vote with Mr. Babcock, have repented.

recent refusal to grant a new loan to the czar. This is a new alignment may cause her to abrogate the dual alliance. At the present time Italy, France, and Great Britain are fairly pitted against Germany, Russia and Austria.

The foreign office considers the selection by the Italian government of Marquis Visconti-Venosta to head its delegation as strengthening the position of France. Italy's choice of the Marquis Visconti-Venosta, who was one of the earliest advocates of the Franco-Italian entente, strengthens the government's expectation of the united support of the leading Mediterranean powers. The public and the press continue, though with greater calmness, to discuss the imperative need of completing military preparations.

Paris, Jan. 8.—France feels greatly strengthened in her dispute with Germany over Morocco from the fact that Italy has shown indisputable signs of siding with her Gallic neighbor in case serious eventualities take place. The assurances from Rome have caused France to become more belligerent in attitude and her delegates will go to the Algeiras conference with instructions to yield nothing material to Germany. France's position in Morocco is to be maintained at all hazards.

The present situation foreshadows the fall of the triple alliance between Germany, Austria and Italy and an entirely new alignment between the European nations. Italy has long shown signs of breaking away from her entente with Austria and Germany, her commercial interests and moral sympathies being on the side of France and England.

WISCONSIN NOW RANKS AS THIRD

MANY FARMS IN STATE USED FOR DAIRY PURPOSES.

IS A GREAT DAIRY STATE

Ranks Fourth in Number of Dairy Cows and Milk Produced—Large Exports.

Fourth in the number of dairy cows; fourth in the amount of milk produced; fifth in respect to the value of the number of farms which derive their principal source of revenue from dairy produce; third with respect to the value of farm property devoted to dairying; the fourth largest butter producing state in the union.

Such is Wisconsin's record as a dairying state. But this is not all. Wisconsin will always deserve and receive credit for the work of Dr. S. M. Babcock, who invented and gave to the world for the freest and most general use the Babcock tester.

Growth of Industry. From an insignificant beginning 100 years ago the dairying industry of the United States has advanced with leaps and bounds, until at the present time it is recognized as one of the most important. The aggregate value of the dairy product of the country is now over $400,000,000. The growth of large cities has had much to do with this development, as well as the advent of rapid transportation facilities. Up to the opening of the nineteenth century no importance whatsoever has been attached to the manufacture for commercial purposes of the ordinary dairy products, butter and cheese, etc., and the product that was available was of a poor quality. Winter dairying was unknown; butter and cheese went to market twice a year, in the spring and fall.

Until the middle of the last century dairying was a specialty in but few sections of the country. New York was the first state to feel the development of a distinct dairying industry. Herkimer county cheese early became famous. An export trade began to grow and the industry spread throughout the New England states, Pennsylvania and Ohio. The factory system began to grow up after the middle of the century, since which time the progress of the industry is marked by the increase and development of the factories that are strewn broadcast over the country today.

Starting of Factories. The early cheese factories and creameries were purely co-operative concerns, such as are to be found in many parts of this state today. Milk is delivered to the factory, is there manufactured into butter or cheese, and the proceeds from sales are divided among the farmers proportionate to the amount of milk delivered by each. From the co-operative factory sprang the joint stock company factory, owned and controlled by the farmers themselves, and finally began the spread of the factory based on the proprietary plan. Now there are large concerns and Wisconsin, by the way, is the home of one of the largest—which own and operate factories in many parts of the country, and which are engaged for the most part in manufacturing and selling condensed milk.

The first cheese factories and creameries received milk direct from the farmers. About 1875 the farmers began to skim their milk and deliver cream only. Later branches of the creameries were opened for receiving cream, which was shipped by rail or carried by team to the more remote central factories.

It is generally said that good butter can be made wherever good feed can be raised. It was only believed that there existed a "dairy belt" lying between the forty-fourth and forty-fifth parallels and extending from the Atlantic to the Missouri river, but this idea has since been exploded, and it has been proven that butter and cheese can be made with profit in most parts of North America. The central west, comprising states near to and adjoining Wisconsin, is now the chief dairying section of the country.

Wisconsin had in 1900 the large number of 25,240 dairy farms; with an average of 9.6 cows per farm. In addition, 150,890 other farms in the state had an average of 8.8 dairy cows. The dairy farms comprised 2,637,289 acres, of which 60 per cent were improved. The investment in farms, improvements, buildings, machinery and live stock for dairying purposes aggregated $133,555,713, and the value of products received the enormous total of $24,992,534. The latter figure has doubtless doubled in the last half decade.

Wisconsin is Third. Only two states in the union surpass Wisconsin in the volume of milk produced annually. The cows of the state are in the habit of giving 500,000,000 gallons of the fluid, of which more than one-half is sold. The manufacture of butter now runs to the enormous total of about 110,000,000 pounds per annum, of which two-fifths is made on farms and the remainder in factories. Next to Iowa, Wisconsin manufactures more butter in factories than any other state in the union. Upwards of 80,000,000 pounds of cheese are also manufactured in the state, the greater part in factories.

On account of the rugged nature of the country in many parts, Wisconsin is particularly well adapted to dairying. The pine lands of the north afford excellent dairying facilities before the soil has been sufficiently cleared to permit of extensive agriculture. The southern part of the state has an excellent local market in Chicago and Milwaukee, while the products of the entire state figure largely in the dairy exports of the nation.

INVESTIGATE GERMS OF THE WHOLE STATE

New Department at the University That Makes Official Tests for Physicians.

With the advance in knowledge regarding germs and the part they play in carrying disease from one person to another, an increased importance has been given to the accurate diagnosis in the earliest possible stage of the development of the disease. This early determination of the real character of the disease is of importance not only for the most successful treatment of the individual affected, but also for the protection of the public. In order to determine the presence of disease germs either in an individual or in water, food or air, it is necessary to make careful tests in a well equipped laboratory. These tests require trained bacteriologists with all the apparatus to be found only in a bacteriological laboratory. The physicians of the smaller towns, cities and rural communities of the state until recently have had no means of securing these important aids to the accurate diagnosis of disease and the prevention of contagion.

Wisconsin, which has always been one of the most active and practical states in the matter of public health, has provided a state hygienic laboratory in conjunction with the laboratories for bacteriology in the university of Wisconsin, in charge of Prof. H. L. Russell, head of the department of bacteriology with Dr. C. A. Butler as assistant. These physicians throughout Wisconsin are awakening to the immense value of the laboratory is shown by the fact that every day there are appeals from all parts of the state from physicians asking aid in solving their bacteriological problems. Although the department has been in operation scarcely two years, there have been 1,350 examinations made and innumerable cases of contagion discovered and traced to their sources.

Fifty-sevenths of all the cases investigated since the organization of the department have been of water suspected of contamination by sewage. Wherever a physician has a case of typhoid fever the suspected cause of which is impure water supply, he should send a sample of the water to the laboratory for analysis. By a series of tests both the number and character of the disease producing organisms can be determined by the expert bacteriologists of the laboratory. By means of these tests the epidemics of typhoid may be prevented.

Since it is often difficult to determine whether a patient suffering with sore throat is diphtheritic, the aid of the laboratory is frequently sought to settle the question. Occasionally the laboratory is called upon to determine the presence of tuberculosis in patients. Aid is also given in cases where a dog suspected of having rabies has bitten a person and examination is requested.

While these tests constitute a considerable part of the work of the laboratory, the investigators are also engaged in research work pertaining to matters of public health. The importance of the state hygienic laboratory can not be overestimated, for by its tests it makes possible a more accurate treatment of disease, a larger percentage of which is of bacterial origin, and by determining the source of infection it prevents the extension of the contagion to other individuals, thus preventing what is commonly termed an epidemic. In this case "the man behind the microscope" is not merely investigating abstract scientific problems, but he is turning his knowledge to a practical account by aiding man in his constant struggle against the myriads of unseen but deadly enemies—disease germs.

EXPERIENCES IN OPERATING ROOM

WHAT A DIFFERENCE COMES BEFORE AND AFTER OPERATION.

A HOSPITAL'S BENEFITS

Skilful Physician Performs Delicate Operation Aided by Trained Nurses.

One Sunday morning, a few weeks ago, a business man, grip in hand, was strolling for the depot, evidently bound on a trip to the city, but when he crossed the Jackson street tracks and struck out for the cemetery it was apparent that he had a time pass which he proposed to use before some legislation deprived him of the privilege.

Friends on the way to church greeted him with a cheerful "good morning," and inquired, "good naturedly," if he was off for Madison to join the lobby.

When the Palmer hospital was reached, he turned in at the waiting, threw aside a half-smoked cigar, rang the bell, and waited for admission. The nurse, who came to the door, seemed a little surprised as the hour was early for callers, and the husky pedestrian did not appear to her as an invalid. He soon convinced her, however, that he was booked as a guest for a few days, and was conducted to a pleasant front room and invited to make himself at home.

At twelve o'clock the savory odor of dinner floated through the halls from the dining room below, and visions of roast turkey relieved the monotony, but a few moments later the vision was dispelled, when attendant entered with a bowl of soup and a glass of milk. Then he began to realize that he was on hospital diet.

After dinner he took a cigar and was about to light it when it occurred to him that smoking might be objectionable. Soon a nurse came in and escorted him to the operating room to bandage his eye and prepare it for an operation which was to occur the next morning.

The cigar was laid on the table and when he returned to the room it was gone, but he is still unable to determine which one of the nurses is addicted to the use of the weed.

Supper was a cup of weak tea and the next morning at nine o'clock found him in bed without any breakfast. Presently the doctor entered with a stethoscope in one hand and a smile in the other and after a brief examination said in the voice of a rear brakeman on a freight train going west, "all right, here," to which a bell responded at the other end of the hall.

Then a truck was rolled in and he was invited to take a ride, but he said, "no, I thank you, the walking is good and I prefer to walk." So he strolled out to the operating room, clad in a blanket, climbed on the operating table and said, "go ahead."

Then the fun commenced. Just before losing consciousness, he heard the doctor say, "his pulse is all right, but his breathing is bad, give me more air," and a few moments later he felt the knife of the operator and heard him say: "Here is the condition I expected, fine, then another whiff of chloroform, knocked him out and at half past ten he found himself back in bed asking the nurse who seemed to be writing his obituary, "if the operation was a success," to which she very consolingly replied, "that he would have to ask the doctor."

"Did you ever take an anesthetic? No. Then you have missed a lot of fun. An anesthetic does things to you in a way that surprises you and everybody else connected with the performance."

When our friend finally came to himself and inquired the time of day he discovered that the ten minute session anticipated in the operating room had been prolonged to an hour and a half, and he said to the nurse: "What time these doctors are!" She smiled and replied: "You can't sometimes tell, but always tell, you don't take very kindly to the anesthetic."

That was a new one, for he supposed he had taken affectionately to everything in the shop, including ether, chloroform and knock-out drops.

Then he lay on his back for a week, living principally on soup and anticipation, and thinking how big a fool a man can be and not know it, for he had said to the doctor before the operation: "Why can't I walk up with you in the morning, have the operation, and go home to dinner?" But the doctor said that would hardly be ethical and not quite fair to the hospital management, as guests were expected to remain at least a few days.

The explanation seemed plausible, so he provided himself with plenty of cigars, some gum-tobacco and spruce gum for consolation in case he could not smoke, and prepared for a ten day's sojourn, just to keep the hospital people company.

When the ten days were up, he climbed into a carriage and rode home, where for the next three weeks his wife practiced the art of an eye doctor, and became expert. There's nothing like an anesthetic and a simple operation to knock the conceit out of you and make you docile.

The Victim. This little scrap of experience came to H. F. Bliss of the Gazette, who was a guest at the Palmer hospital early in December. Mr. Bliss had the misfortune to lose the sight of his right eye, two years ago, as the result of an attack of acute glaucoma, inflammation, incident to the disease followed until the eye became as troublesome as a sore tooth, and rather than have it removed he decided, after consulting with Dr. Dwight of Janesville and Dr. Woodruff of Chicago, to have an operation performed, known as iridectomy, being assured that he had everything to gain, and nothing to lose in the operation.

In the meantime, the other eye had become involved, and between pain, anxiety and enforced idleness, there was ample time to worry.

The operation was successfully performed by Dr. Dwight, and both eyes benefited as the result.

The Palmer Memorial Hospital.

The people of Janesville know but little about the Palmer hospital. They should know more, for while it is a good place to keep away from it is also the best place in the city for intelligent care and careful nursing, in cases of emergency.

The fact is generally recognized that while love and sympathy are the bulwark of the home, that these graces count for but little in battling with disease, when compared to well-directed hospital care. The sanitation of the home is seldom perfect, while the hospital makes this the first requirement. Then there is no sentiment about the care. It is intelligent and methodical, and every symptom is speedily recognized and recorded.

The Palmer hospital was founded a dozen years ago, by the late Dr. Henry Palmer, after various efforts to maintain an institution of this character had failed. The home and grounds, well adapted to the purpose, was known as the Dan Smith property. The house has twenty or more beds, a modern operating room, and is thoroughly and well equipped for the work. Since the death of Dr. Palmer his wife has owned the property and in the past five or six years it has been rented by Miss C. E. Baker, a graduate of the Presbyterian and Cook county hospitals of Chicago.

During Miss Baker's administration some nine-hundred patients have been cared for and the hospital is usually filled to its capacity. It is not a gold mine, and the best of management is required to keep the institution on its feet. Most of the beds are from $1.50 to $2.00 per day, which includes hospital care and nursing, unless a special nurse is required.

The railroad and many of the factories are regular patrons, and it is a disgrace to the city that at least one bed is not maintained by the municipality. The ordinary drunk, who is disabled on the street, may receive all the care he deserves at the look-up, but the physicians are constantly confronted with the proposition of worthy poor people, and in many instances they not only donate services but go down in their pockets and pay hospital fees as well. The city can well afford to appropriate a little money for the care of this class of cases, and it should be done in the interests of humanity.

Miss Baker was not long in discovering that she could not afford to hire training nurses, so she established a training school, covering a three year's course and offering all the advantages of the city hospitals.

A number of nurses have graduated and the present class is composed of Miss Anna Lewis, third year; Miss Hazel Smith, second year; Miss Elizabeth Taylor and Miss Minnie Pavis, first year. Miss Augusta Hoffman is also on the force as a paid nurse.

The medical staff, who lecture to the class the present year, is composed of Dr. Wolcott, Dr. Palmer, Dr. Mifflin, Dr. Thorne, Dr. Pomeroy, Dr. Mills, Dr. Farnsworth, Dr. Buckmaster, Dr. Woods, Dr. Fred Sutherland, Dr. Loomis and Dr. Chas. Sutherland, while Miss Coleman of the high school talks to them on dietetics and Miss Baker on practical nursing and hygiene every alternate Saturday.

The physicians of the city, be it said to their credit, work together for the success of the hospital. Dr. Thorne has perhaps the largest number of cases in operative work as his practice extends over the southern portion of the state. He visits the hospital every morning before taking up office work.

The Palmer Memorial hospital is a credit to the city and the physicians are fortunate in securing Miss Baker as manager and manager.

ODE BY BILL CLUB POET.

Bill Fowler Tells the Other Bills About "Just Plain Bill."

At the annual banquet of the Bill club in Excelsior Springs, Mo., the other night Bill Fowler, poet laureate, known in public life as Judge William Fowler, delivered the following ode to the other members of the club.

whose names all are Bill, says a special dispatch from Excelsior Springs, Mo., to the Chicago Record-Herald.

There are all sorts of lodges in these modern times.

There are all sorts of "lodge"—men of secret grips and signs.

There's lodges in the valley and there's lodges on the hill.

But none on earth that beats our own—Bill Wallace of Kansas City was the principal speaker. Two original songs were sung by the Bill quartet.

The Bill club is the only organization of its kind in the world. Qualifications for membership are to be a good fellow named Bill. Its membership, reaching to all parts of the country, includes prominent Bills of every walk in life. Senator Bill Warner of Kansas City holds card No. 22, and his colleague, Senator Bill Stone, has No. 23.

GREAT SLAUGHTER OF GAME

Thousands Upon Thousands of Wild Animals Destroyed in South Africa.

During the four months of the shooting season of 1904 something like 13,000 head of game has been sold on the Kimberley market. Those figures were rather staggering, but it is surprising, perhaps, to hear that they had more than doubled during the present year.

The secretary of the Game Protection association had obtained a return from the marketmaster which showed that 29,119 head of game were sold on the Kimberley market during the period April 1 to August 15 last. If of that 29,119, say 2,000 head were small birds which did not come within the usual interpretation of the word "game," that left something like 27,000 head of buck and birds which were included in the usual interpretation of the word "game." That was a lamentable return, and clearly emphasized the necessity for taking some action to stop the indiscriminate slaughter of game.

The totals under the various heads of the return showed that the game included 3,402 springbuck, 244 duiker, 1,816 stembuck, 6,883 hares—the past season had been a remarkable one for hares, as all knew—3,897 korbuan, 3,247 reudwing, 704 guinea fowl, 137 paaau, 223 wild duck, 25 wild geese and 3,355 partridges and small birds.

Many Self-Denials for Flute Player.

Kissing, the use of tobacco and indulgence in intoxicants are equally disastrous to the ambitions of the flutist, according to John J. Cafarella, a flutist of over 20 years standing. Muscles of a flutist's mouth are tender to a degree, or they are sensitive, that is the word, said Mr. Cafarella. "They are trained to the action necessary to the performance with the flute, but at the same time they are more sensitive than the ordinary muscles. Tobacco and intoxicants absolutely unfit the player for his work, as they make the muscles of the mouth so flabby and limp that they cannot perform their necessary and difficult work."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Conscience Stricken.

The sheriff of Sonoma county, California, has received a letter from a man in Brooklyn, N. Y., saying that in the fall of 1895 he went the rounds of the Santa Rosa ranches, stealing horses, hogs, chickens, harness and many other things, but is now converted and wants a list of those whom he despoiled so that he can make restitution.

Not Going to Roll 'Em Home.

A newsboy walked into a drug store and said to the clerk: "Gimme a half-dozen quinine pills." The clerk thought he would have a little fun with him, and said: "Do you want them in a box?" The newsboy replied: "Aw, want you think, I'm going to roll 'em home?"

COREYS EVOLVE PLAN OF TRUCE

Millionaire and Wife Find Solution for Their Domestic Troubles.

COUPLE WILL NOT SEPARATE

Husband Will Make Ample Provision for Wife, but Two Households Are to Be Maintained in Order to Avoid Scandal of Divorce.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 8.—W. Ellis Corey, the $100,000 a year president of the United States Steel corporation, has found a solution of his domestic troubles.

For the sake of their son, Allan M. Corey, the steel magnate has reached an agreement with his wife, which is expected to mark the end of the scandal. The agreement was made through the medium of mutual friends, for Mr. and Mrs. Corey did not meet.

There will be no reconciliation, but by the terms of the agreement there will be no legal divorce. According to the statements of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Corey will live apart, but without a formal settlement. The husband will make ample provision for the support of the wife. They will remain legally married, but that is all.

According to the friends who were responsible for averting the scandal of a divorce, Mabelle Gluman was not the primary cause of the trouble between Corey and his wife.

Mrs. Corey is Home Body.

For over three years friends of the two knew that such incompatibility existed that to all intents and purposes they were no longer man and wife. No blame is placed on either of them. It was simply, friends say, a case of diversity of tastes and opinions. For a time each contemplated divorce to relieve them of shackles that chafed. That idea now has been definitely abandoned for the reason that neither would have the future of their son, whom they both idolize, clouded by the scandal.

Mrs. Corey, perhaps, is the exception that proves the rule that American women are always equal to any position achieved by their husbands. This, although probably she received a better education than her husband, Mrs. Corey, however, is a domestic woman, who had no interests beyond the proper administration of her household and the care of her children. The loss of three children of four born to her intensified this trait.

Sought Place in Society.

Corey, having achieved success in the world of finance, desired to take a place in society. To this end he secured for his wife a private secretary, or "social pilot," that Mrs. Corey might not be afraid of making any social errors. Then he desired to launch her into the social whirlpool.

Mrs. Corey did not approve of this, nor would she consent to preside at any functions of magnitude.

All this prevented Corey from mingling, as much as he desired, in society. As a result he was thrown back upon the society of his own friends, whose invitations to dinner or lunch at a club or hotel he could return in kind.

Three years ago the situation became so acute that Mr. Corey and his wife found their greatest happiness when apart. Their stories, whether true or false, no one knows, began to reach Mrs. Corey about her husband. Then first began the talk of divorce.

Will Travel for Health.

Mrs. Corey, whose health is not robust, will not make her home in Pittsburg, but will travel much of the time. She will not go abroad, as she would not care to be so far from her son, who is at school in New York.

The domestic scandal in which W. Ellis Corey has been involved for several weeks was not allowed to mar the annual banquet Saturday of the operating officials of the Carnegie Steel company. The affair was one of the most gorgeous ever held in this city. The brilliancy of the decorations was only exceeded by the wealth represented around the table.

There was scarcely a man present who wasn't a millionaire, a duke, a majority of millionaires many times over. It's safe to say the sixty men present represented $200,000,000.

GREAT BARGAIN FOR THE RIGHT MAN

A Fine, Large Stock and Dairy Farm in Webster County, Missouri,

150 miles south of St. Louis, where the winter season for feeding stock never exceeds eight weeks, and as a rule about six weeks is the limit of anything that would be called cold weather in Wisconsin. Climate and water could not be better. A great fruit and poultry country. In fact anything can be produced there that can be anywhere. Help is cheap and the average price per month for good men is from $16 to $18 per month with board, and $1.00 to $1.25 per day without board. The great point in the argument is, you can get just as much for your produce there as you can here, at about two-thirds of the cost of same to produce, or less. Good churches and schools, also good society, and as a rule honest people.

This farm is located 8 miles from a good town, on the Frisco R. R., between St. Louis and Springfield, Mo., and there is a store and postoffice about one mile from the farm. This property is owned by a man of 84 years of age, who wants to sell and move to town—the reason for selling. The farm consists of 600 acres, 400 in cultivation, 200 in pasture and timber. Two small spring creeks cross the land, making fine water for stock. The land is some rolling, but not hilly. The buildings are: one 6-room house with cellar and summer kitchen of stone 18x20; 4 tenant houses; 1 barn 60x70 for horses and mules; 1 new barn 114x60 with cement floors, stalls for 84 head of stock; stone granary and hen house 16x25; stone wood house 18x20; 1 pair of 4-ton scales. Personal property: 1 pair of mules worth $400; 2 pair of horses worth $500; 190 head of cattle—84 of these are fine milk cows—balance young stock of all kinds; 1 manure spreader; 2 cultivators—new; 2 wagons; 1 surrey; 1 disk harrow; 1 smoothing harrow; 1 6-horse power gasoline engine; 1 milk separator—capacity 850 lbs. per hour; 1 80-gallon churn with shafting; 2 mowers; 1 rake; 1 4-foot griststone; 1 blacksmith forge and anvil; 1 Duplex corn and cob mill for feed grinding. All of the above personal property goes with farm at $40 per acre; if sold soon, or you can buy the farm without stock and tools, at a price less the value of stock and tools.

I can also sell you smaller farms, of any size, if wanted. I have a nice 378-acre farm at $22.50 per acre. Prices range on improved farms all the way from $15 to $60 per acre, for small farms. About $20 to $30 buys a good place. Let me hear from you. Terms—one-half cash, balance time. Address:

RHEUMATISM THE TERROR OF WINTER

Rheumatism is usually worse in Winter because of the cold and dampness and other changed conditions of the climate. The occasional twinges of the disease that are felt during the warmer weather are changed to piercing pains, the muscles become inflamed and swollen, the nerves get sore and excited, the bones ache, and Rheumatism, the terror of winter, takes possession of the system. Then the sufferer turns to the liniment bottle, the woolen clothes, the favorite plaster or some home remedy, in an effort to get relief. But Rheumatism is not a trouble that can be rubbed away or drawn out with a plaster; these things relieve the pain and reduce the inflammation, but do not reach the real cause of the trouble, and at the next exposure another attack comes on. Rheumatism is caused by a sour acid condition of the blood. The refuse matter and bodily impurities which should be carried off through the channels of nature have been left in the system because of indigestion, weak kidneys, torpid liver and a general sluggish condition of the system. These impurities sour and form uric acid, which is absorbed by the blood, and distributed to the different muscles, joints, nerves and bones, causing the painful symptoms of Rheumatism. S. S. S. goes to the root of the trouble and cures Rheumatism by cleansing the blood. It neutralizes the acids and filters them out of the circulation and sends a stream of pure, rich blood to all parts of the body. Then the pains cease, the inflammation subsides, the nerves are quieted, every symptom of the disease passes away, and the cure is permanent. S. S. S. is purely vegetable and does not injure the system as do those medicines containing Potash and other minerals. Book on Rheumatism and medical advice without charge.

for Irvine J. Lenroot as a candidate for the highest office in the state.

This backing, endorsed by Senator

La Follette, is supposed to influence public sentiment in favor of the Superior man, and any questions which may be asked will be considered impertinent. But the program will not be carried out without friction.

The terms "stalwart" and "half-breed" belong to history. They should be buried and forgotten. The contest between these factions has closed, and the next earnest work of the party will be to redeem the state to republicanism. Every intelligent member of the party without regard to past affiliations recognizes the importance of the work, and La Folletteism will no longer be permitted to control the party.

The sentiment expressed by Marshal Appleby, is generally endorsed by republicans throughout the state.

"The governor has been taken care of and he must keep his hands off."

The people have had enough of one man power, and they do not propose to perpetuate it by endorsing Lenroot simply because the late governor desires it.

The next governor must be a man who recognizes parties and not factions. He must be broad enough to accord to all men the right of opinion without regarding them as enemies and traitors if their views do not agree with his. He must be a man who prefers harmony to strife and discord, and he ought to be a man who has a larger grasp of state affairs than is possible to the narrow vision of a reformer.

The Milwaukee Free Press makes a lame attempt to endorse Lenroot, but don't endorse him. The paper talks like a parrot about representative government, and treats the question as though it was a lost art.

The only trouble with the state, is that it has been governed too much for the past five years. The prejudice of the masses has been aroused and class distinction has been encouraged and developed as never before.

Lenroot's candidacy is intended to keep up the strife and still further demoralize the republican party. The fact that Senator La Follette wants him, or that he aspires to the office, is no argument in his favor, and will have but little weight for him.

The republicans of the state will select and elect the next governor, and it will not be Lenroot, or any other man whose principal aim is strife and discord, however much the late boss of the state may desire him.

Madison Democrat. One Schiff-

ed to the gambling nabobs of New York. What care we about the ventures of these speculative gentry? Let the panic come! Recent revelations regarding the cut-throat operations of the exponents of high finance indicate the probability that a panic might prove a useful means of purification. The great masses are immune to serious danger. Indeed, most of us would rejoice to see a little financial flurry if thereby the wind bag of inflation might be punc-tured.

Tame—But Probably True.

Chicago Tribune. Spooner and

La Follette of Wisconsin acted with good sense when one introduced the other to the senate of the United States. They have been the leaders of opposing factions at home in a bitter political feud, and there were predictions that they would take the first opportunity to show ill-feeling on the floor of the senate. But both realized that in a larger sense they were standing before the people of the United States. They were there as representatives of the sovereign state of Wisconsin, and they felt that in spite of personal differences and political differences their appearance in that forum at that time should be decorous and becoming. They jointly represent Wisconsin and that state demands that its joint representation shall be worthy and dignified. They will sometimes differ in debate and in their votes. But they should always keep their manners and their temper. Sometimes great men are guilty of foolish acts. In this case neither gentleman was guilty of the folly which newspaper correspondents said they would be guilty of. It was said they would violate the courtesies and customs of the senate to show their ill-will for each other. They did nothing of the sort. Some deem manners of little moment. They are much mistaken. The little amenities of life not only increase the agreeableness of social intercourse, but they often smooth the way for matters of importance. There is too much of the kind of senatorial courtesy that obstructs public business.

There is no danger that there will be too much of the kind that Mr. Spooner and Mr. La Follette showed to each other.

DENTAL FACTS

A summing up of the year's business for 1905 shows that my practice has DOUBLED in volume.

I also find that scarcely a day passes that I do not have from three to five NEW patients in addition to my old friends.

Upon inquiry from these new patients I almost invariably find that they came to me SENT BY MY OLD PATIENTS.

Now it is perfectly plain to both you and me that no mere advertising, no argument possibly to be brought to bear, could induce people either to CONTINUE business relations with me or to SEND THEIR DEAR FRIENDS to me for dental work unless the work I do for them is SATISFACTORY.

When I put on a gold crown for $5 it is a genuine 22-karat pure gold article, the equal of any $10 crown ever set.

I am doing as FINE dentistry as is done in the city.

My TERMS and the QUALITY of my work are drawing me the CREAM of the dental business of the city.

Let me number YOU as one of my satisfied patients also.

CHASE BIG WOLF IN A BOB-SLED

TALE OF 'KOSHKONONG COLOR' COMES FROM CLINTON.

BEAST WAS KILLED THOUGH

D. W. Christman Brings Carcass of Large Timber Wolf to City for Bounty.

From the wilds to the west of the village of Clinton comes a tale of bold hunters and their success, which rivals in particulars and climax the attention-grabbing Koshkonong wolf story. This narrative, like its competitor, is of a wolf chase. The principals in it are a huge canis cougel, three inhabitants of the land and an Oregonian, that is, a Wisconsin Oregonian. The story as related by one of the participants runs as follows:

Wolf Suggestion Ridiculed
George Christman, who lives near Clinton, and his brother, D. W. Christman, who was visiting him from Oregon, Wis., started out on a bob-sled on Thursday last to make the rounds of some traps which the two had set in a nearby woods. Before they had gone half a mile the Oregon man suggested the possibility of spying that wolf which the Allen Grove residents spent two days in chasing and further thought it might be well to turn back and secure a gun or rifle. The Clinton man laughed at the idea and the sled journey continued.

The Chase Is Begun
The traps were relieved of their quarry and reset and the two men started on the return. The one who suspected that a wolf might be seen kept very much while his companion now and then chuckled at thought. It did seem laughable. But when they arrived at that same turn where the wolf suggestion had been made two hours previous there he was and no mistake about it, a large timber wolf. He had emerged from some brush at one side of the highway and leisurely, but watchfully, paced across into a field. It was the Oregonian's turn for jubilation, but he made another suggestion. "This time it was not casual, but full of excitement," George, we can get that wolf. If you'll risk your horse I'll risk mine and we'll have him." George didn't laugh. He was excited now too. "Let her go, Dave," he said and the chase was on.

Tried to "Ram" Him
"Dave" drove into the field in close pursuit of the game. The land was open for some two hundred and fifty or three hundred acres, an ideal spot for a hunt of its kind. The hunters had the best of it however. The field was covered with stubble ten or twelve inches high and between the grain Devil's pitchforks, the "stick-ticks," producers had grown up thickly. Over this was spread several inches of soft snow. The wolf became tangled badly in no time, sinking to his body in the snow and grain and getting unmerciful treatment from the two-pronged burrs. The horses didn't mind this and found an excellent footing. The hunters were gaining. Before they had gone the length of the field they had passed the wolf in an attempt to "ram" him. This headed him back over his old tracks, but his pursuers were soon turned and upon his trail again.

Killed by a Boy
Back and forth over the field the chase continued, the wolf ever seeking to escape, but being turned away from the fences each time when liberty seemed near. The horses were becoming white with froth, but the wolf was tiring also and his speed was slackening. Then the pursuers stopped long enough to allow one to get from the sled. George Christman was the man and he skipped to his house less than a quarter of a mile away. Securing a shotgun, he returned and poured several loads of buck-shot and bird-shot into the wolf. The beast was knocked down several times, but not visibly injured. The shooting attracted Winter Northrup, who lives near. He came forth with a "22-40" rifle. Then some shooting commenced but buck fever will make explanations here. The wolf by this time had become thoroughly fagged and the hunters were consequently a little off guard and he slunk from the big field across the road into a smaller pasture. It looked dubious for the hunters then, but before they were able to follow the animal a shot rang out from one side and the wolf set up on his haunches. Then the author of the shot, Ray Christman, the fourteen-year-old son of George Christman, emerged from the thicket with a small calibre rifle. He rushed toward the wounded beast and standing before him "let go" twice into the head.

Weighed Forty-two Pounds
The animal, which weighed forty-two pounds, was brought into the city Saturday afternoon by D. W. Christman and presented at the courthouse. Here the bounty of $20 was paid. The hide, though it was pierced by three bullets and thirty-three small shot, sold at the J. T. Wright, leather store for $2.50.

THE WEATHER

Temperature last 24 hours taken from registered thermometer at Heim: Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Sunday, Jan. 3, 1906.

MERCURY FALLS TO ZERO MARK AT LAST

This Temperature Reached During Last Twenty-Four Hours for First Time This Winter.

For the first time this winter the thermometer fell as far as the zero mark this morning. It fell no lower and by noon had climbed considerably above this point. These statements are made on the record of Heim-street's registered instrument. The weather as regards temperature has been most wonderful so far and compared to that of last winter is phenomenal. In December of 1904 the mercury fell below zero on three consecutive days, standing at ten below on the 15th and 16th and at six below on the 17th. The early days of January, 1905, were warm, but during the month much cold weather was experienced. On the 10th the nine-below mark was touched, on the 14th the eight, on the 15th the one, and the last six days of the month showed, respectively, the temperatures of five, four, four, zero, six and two below.

CITY LIBRARY IS TO OPEN THURSDAY

Has Been Closed for Over a Month—Request Made by the Library Board.

On Thursday the Janesville City Library is to be opened for the benefit of the public once more. The closing of this building for over a month past has been a hardship upon many and understood by few. It appears that the building was closed at the request of the physicians who feared a spread of smallpox through the issuing of books that had been in homes of persons afflicted. The following notice to the general public is issued:

"The present status of our city in relation to all contagious diseases seems to warrant the opening of the public library this week. Owing to the difficulty of obtaining complete information concerning the cases which have been under quarantine, and owing to the impossibility of knowing how many persons have loaned library books to those afflicted with contagious diseases, we desire to appeal to the public to aid us in our search for all library books which may be a source of danger to the public. Will those having such books or those having knowledge of such please report the same by title to the librarian at once, so that proper measures may be taken to insure public safety. The library will be open to the public on Thursday, Jan. 11.

However five took examinations, three for clerkships, one for an asylum guardship and another for an attendantship. Two of the applicants were from Whitewater and the rest from this city.

BIRTH RETURNS BIG INCREASE

ROCK COUNTY MADE IMPOSING GAIN OF 211.

IN THE YEAR JUST CLOSED

There Was a Falling Off in Marriages, However, and a Large Increase in Death List.

During the year 1905, according to the records, the state added 211 more calls to her 1904 visiting list in Rock county. Births in 1904 totaled 726. In 1905 they reached the large aggregate of 937—an average of over two and a half a day. At the same time there was an increase of 180 in the number of deaths—the 1904 record being 494 and the 1905 total being 674. There was a falling off of 33 in the number of marriages that took place within the county limits—showing either that more went to Illinois or that the little divinity with the cherubic face and the bow and arrow went back on his constituency hereabouts, to a certain degree. Weddings within the boundaries totaled 306 in 1904 and only 273 in 1905.

Are the Records Complete?

Because they are dependent for their completeness upon the fidelity of several score of professional men charged with the duty of reporting them, there has always been some doubt as to the absolute correctness of these statistics. Many professional men, like other human beings, are careless—even when they are paid fees for promptly reporting the things that transpire in their individual households. Physicians receive 25 cents each for every birth, death, and accident accounted for, unless they happen to be health officers when the fee is 15 cents. Under Sec. 1022, Chapter 417, of the Wisconsin statutes as amended by the legislature at their last session, the ministers also are entitled to 25 cents for each marriage reported after the law went into effect last June.

Pin-Money for Wives

It is said to be a habit among physicians to turn over to their wives as pin-money the cash that they receive from such sources. If such be the case, several of the latter will receive comfortable little amounts after the county board passes upon the reports at the forthcoming meeting. The account with Dr. W. D. Merritt as health officer and physician is as follows:

As Health Officer—

34 deaths at 15c..... $5.10

133 births at 15c..... 19.95

As Physician—

12 births at 25c..... 3.25

5 deaths at 25c..... 1.25

6 accidents at 25c..... 1.50

Total..... $33.55

Dr. T. H. McCarthy as health officer is credited with reporting 105 deaths, 188 births, and 20 accidents; and as physician with reporting 5 births and 5 deaths. His compensation will be $41.95. Dr. W. H. Payne of Beloit, former health officer, will receive $29.45 and Dr. W. W. Crockett, the present health officer, will receive $60.90.

Fees of Private Physicians

Other physicians of Janesville will be presented with the following fees for similar services to the state and county: Dr. J. B. Pomeroy—$24.75; E. H. Palmer—$3.35; C. G. Chittenden—$7; Q. O. Sutherland—$6.50; S. B. Buckmaster—$3.50; F. B. Farnsworth—$6.75; James Gibson—$4.50; W. H. Judd—$6.50; G. H. Webster—$5.50; E. B. Loomis—$13; R. W. Edden—$4.20; F. E. Sutherland—$15.00; C. H. Sutherland—$15.00; James L. Mills—$2.25; E. H. Dudley—$5.50; Charles L. Clark—$5.25; W. St. John—$6.75; Geo. H. Fox—$5.50.

Ministers May Be Fino

Ministers and justices of the peace before whom any marriage is solemnized or contracted are required to make a record of the age, occupation, color, previous condition of servitude, etc., of the contracting parties, and file a certificate containing such information with the register of deeds within 30 days after the event transpires and in event of their failure to do so they are liable to a fine of not less than $25 or more than $100, providing action is commenced against the offender before such certificate has been actually delivered to the register. This law has been operative only since June. There have doubtless been some violations, but no prosecutions are likely to follow so far as can be learned; the present register being a gentle and merciful man. Rev. R. C. Denison and Rev. W. H. Gobel head the list of local pastors with 12 weddings each, for which they will receive $3 apiece. Rev. R. M. Vaughan is second with 7 weddings, for which he will receive $17.50. Under another new law the register of deeds office makes a quarterly report of births, marriages, deaths and accidents to the state board of health instead of the former annual report to the secretary of state. Accidents in Rock county reported since last June total 70.

There were a few drunks in the lock-up over Sunday, but none were brought into municipal court today. Saturday August Dalke paid a fine of $4 and costs and Patrick Goodman, a fine of $2 and costs. Henry Schlener was fined $2 and costs, but his case was adjourned two weeks to enable him to get the money.

Schaefer In Form For Big Match

America's Leading Billiardist to Play For the World's Championship Title in April in Paris. Either Hoppe or Vignaux Will Oppose Him.

Jacob Schaefer, America's premier billiardist and holder of more records than any one of his profession, past or present, is rounding into fine form for his next world's championship match, which he believes will take place in April.

Schaefer's opponent will be either Maurice Vignaux, the aged French expert, who is technically world's champion, or Willie Hoppe, the youthful American player, who challenged Vignaux and will meet the veteran at Paris Jan. 15 for the championship emblem at eighteen inch bill line, one shot in ball.

If Vignaux defeats Hoppe, Schaefer will journey to France to play his old rival, but if Hoppe wins the latter will return to this country and meet Schaefer for the championship on American soil.

Schaefer for the last three years has been Hoppe's tutor. The boy was an apt pupil, and his play reached such a high standard that he got so he could hold the Wizard about even. They toured the country together and beat each other in exhibition games that were marked by big runs and high averages. Sometimes the contests were extremely keen, one doing all in his power to take the honors from the other.

Vignaux won the championship through a victory over George Sutton, the American, at Paris last winter. The Frenchman won by a narrow margin. He and Hoppe are both in practice now for their coming engagement and meet frequently in short academic contests. In these games Hoppe has more than held his own, according to reports.

Although Schaefer is over fifty years of age, he is eight years Vignaux's junior.

JACOB SCHAEFER EXECUTING A DIFFICULT SHOT ON RAIL MASS.

for. If they meet again it will simply be the renewal of the championship contests they engaged in over twenty years ago, both here and abroad. Their great games in Central Music hall, Chicago, are still fresh in the minds of old time billiard enthusiasts, who sit to this day and tell of the feats of the great cue masters.

Schaefer is devoting his time now strictly to the eighteen one and eight two ball line game. At his academy in Clark street, Chicago, he and Ben Sawyer, the California crack, are at it three nights a week, while on the remaining nights Schaefer has other opponents.

When it is taken into consideration that Schaefer's right wrist, his cue arm, has been broken twice and that his left hand is minus a finger and is also slightly paralyzed, causing him to change his bridge in recent years, his work is nothing short of miraculous. Such misfortunes would dishearten any ordinary person, but not Schaefer. The little man with the iron nerve simply changed his style to correspond with his physical deficiencies and went on sawing wood and making carous. He is now in as good form as ever.

Schaefer takes a lot of pride in his little son, Jacob junior. Although only eleven years old, the boy has shown exceptional billiard ability, and his father already sees in him a champion.

The Wizard, although the most modest of great men, points to his memorable contest with Cure in Paris one year ago last June with great pride. That match, which Schaefer won, was at eighteen inch ball line, two shots in ball. They played 8,000 points in blocks of 600 each night.

At that time Cure was champion of France. He is one of the greatest players—better than Vignaux in Schaefer's opinion—and he was in prime form. Early in the match he secured a big lead on Schaefer, but Jake found his stride and kept up so steadily that when they stepped to the table for the final night's play the American was only eight points behind.

Herman's Rise.

Young Chicagoan's Defeat of Eddie Hanlon Makes Him Feared.

Kid Herman of Chicago decisively defeated Eddie Hanlon recently in a twenty round bout at Los Angeles. From first to last the young City fighter, hampered by opponent with uppercuts, jabs, jolts, and full arm punches that would have put out a less sturdy little man.

At the end Hanlon's face was battered, bruised and bleeding and Herman was unmarked.

Herman is likely to prove the rock upon which more than one pugilistic ambition is cast away. Game, strong, long on endurance and a free, punishing hitter from any position, he conducts a battle with consummate generalship and is hard to hit. In and out of the clinches, incessantly pumping in hard right hand uppercuts, with occasional smashing crosses, flush upon the mouth and face, the Chicago boy had Hanlon guessing from the first fire.

One round was almost a repetition of every other with Hanlon acting as receiver general throughout.

No clearest decision, even was given, and no one could find fault with it, not even the beaten man himself.

Herman's rise to fame has been the topic, just as was that of Young Corbett. Herman is anxious to meet either Young Corbett, Terry McGovern or Jimmy Britt.

While Herman is but a boy in age, although by no means a novice in pugilism, he fights like an old time veteran. He is wonderfully cool and calculating, and no matter how fierce the milling may be, he never permits himself to get rattled or to become the least bit anxious. He has a splendid delivery with both hands and will not shrink a muscle if he feels that it is the proper thing to do, but will never rush headlong into danger, as some fighters do, as soon as they get stung in a hit.

Herman can fight strong at 128 pounds, but does not bar any one who will do 135 pounds, ringside and if given the opportunity will clean up the crop of lightweighters one after the other, with the possible exception of Battling Nelson, just so sure as he gets into the ring.

The Hanlon bout marked Herman's first appearance in California, and the native son's patrons of boxing can therefore be pardoned for making Hanlon favorite in the betting. Whatever else may be said about the native sons, no one is foolish enough to claim that they don't know a prize fighter when they see one perform. Californians, as a rule, know all about the fighting games and are not able to favor a counterfeiter. Jim Corbett, Young Mitchell, Dal Hawkins, Solly Smith, Jim Jeffries and Jimmy Britt have all been evolved from California's sporting circle.

Willie Lewis and Willie Fitzgerald have signed articles to fight twenty five rounds before the Colma Athletic club of San Francisco. Both are leading welterweights, and as there is no love lost between them it is likely that the bout will be worth seeing.

Both boys are clever, and each has a hard punch. Lewis is worked into shape for the bout by engaging in three round exhibitions in New York.

Walcott and Lavigne Now Friends.

Joe Walcott, the welterweight champion, and Kid Lavigne, the lightweight champion, who fought the most grueling fifteen round battle at Massachu. N. Y. several years ago at Mashpee, have taken place in this country, have buried the hatchet and are the best of friends. Walcott met Lavigne by chance a few days ago and after they had a long talk Walcott asked Lavigne if he would help train him for his fight with Willie Lewis, and Lavigne agreed to do so.

Association Football.

Herculean efforts to make association or "soccer" football popular in the east have thus far failed to create more than an impression, but lovers of the game are hopeful that it will replace the Rugby game. It is much less dangerous to the players than Rugby football, but there is a difference of opinion as to the interest it can arouse among the enthusiasts.

King of Jockeys.

Danny Maher Has Won English Derby Twice.

The success of Jockey Danny Maher abroad has set the American turf agog with comment on the former Hartford (Conn.) bootblack's wonderful ability as a horse pilot.

It was the most fortunate thing imaginable for Danny Maher that the late Pierre Lorillard took him to England six years ago and there gave him a start, which the bright faced Irish American was not slow to improve.

With the prestige of having won the Derby twice, he ranks today from the percentage standpoint as the best professional jockey in England. What would have been his destiny here if he had not attracted the attention of the deceased sportsman?

That question is not difficult to answer. While Maher would have no doubt remained at or close to the top of the ladder, his career would not by any means have been so long or so successful as it has been in England. In the first place, America has more good jockeys than England has, and consequently competition would have been keener, thus diminishing the chances of continued success on the part of any one rider. Secondly, Maher is getting a bit heavy as his age advances, and American owners and trainers will not countenance the giving of mounts to heavy lads. In England regulations and customs regarding weight are by no means so stringent as here.

Like Maher, Fred Taral found that the light bodied boys were getting the best mounts here, and when he got a chance he sought a foreign market for his conceded ability. He, too, has worn well with his employers, the Austrians, who have not hesitated to turn back to America other riders whose manners and associates offended them.

J. H. Martin, though not so successful as Maher, is evidently well able to secure ample earnings in the saddle in England.

It is an emphatic lesson to jockeys who are fashionable for a season or two to save their earnings while they are on the top wave of prosperity, for no profession known to modern days is so inconsistent as that of jockeyship—at least in America.

It has been claimed by some that at the present time we are not as well off for riders as we were a few years ago, but with jockeys of such tried ability as O'Neil, Redfern, Lynne, Eldebrand, Knapp, W. Buchanan, J. Martin, Shaw, W. Davis, Miller and others it must be acknowledged that this season's list at least compares favorably with that of other years, and this does not take into account the fine array of American riders who for several years past have been in control of the French turf, the best of whom were O'Connor, N. Turner, Rausch, Shields and others. But the lads should not fail to take note of the fleeting opportunities which their profession is noted for.

Out of a list of forty-one jockeys who dominated the riding of 1895 there remains not one in this country who would be able to secure a retainer, either because of too much weight or because the younger lads are under the immediate control of the trainers. All the five pounds apprentice allowance which some young riders enjoy would invariably be preferred, not only by their contract employers, but by other horsemen.

Illinois Hunters Are Angry--Jimmy Sheppard, the Brooklyn Baseball Star, Is In an Unhappy Mood Too--Doesn't Like the Chicago Deal.

Illinois sportsmen are furious over the probable loss of thousands of acres of fine hunting territory in central Illinois as a result of the decision to drain a vast tract in Tazewell county adjoining Spring Lake.

This district long has been noted as one of the finest hunting resorts in the west. In the Tazewell county court recently a petition of the commissioners in the Spring Lake drainage and levee improvement district for modification of the plan was approved and permission granted to commence work next spring. The big undertaking will cost approximately $800,000, and the territory consists of 12,000 acres. This vast tract has been under water most of the time, due to its location between Spring Lake and the Illinois river.

The land to be drained has been worthless except for hunting, but will soon become valuable for farm purposes and will add heavily to the landed wealth of Tazewell county. The drainage scheme, also, may affect Spring Lake. The channel of the lake will be deepened and kept open for navigation during the boating season.

At the recent meeting of the Indiana Intercollegiate Athletic association, which includes the larger institutions of the state, a ruling was passed which provides against the barring of freshmen from the athletic teams, a proposition presented by Zora Cleveland, Indiana's representative. It was decided to hold the annual field meet at Purdue on May 25.

The following officers were chosen: President, H. J. McClellan of Notre Dame; Vice president, Dr. Seamon of De Paul; Secretary, H. R. Sutherland of Vabasil; treasurer, Zora Cleveland.

of Indiana, financial committee, A. P. Jamison of Purdue and C. M. Trueblood of Rose Polytechnic.

An important step taken at the meeting was the appointment of an arbitrator to settle all disputes as to the eligibility of the players. Professor Waldo, who is arbitrator of the "big nine," will act in this capacity.

There is one man in this country who is not looked to death at the trade made between the Chicago and Brooklyn clubs of the National league, whereby Brooklyn surrendered the famous Sheppard for four Chicago players.

This man is James Sheppard himself. He does not feel flattered over the fact that he is considered worth four able bodied men in the National league and is much wrought up over the fact that the deal was made without the formality of consulting his wishes in the matter.

In short, he considers that Mr. Ebbets, one of the owners of the Brooklyn club, gave him a raw deal when he went ahead and made the trade without even sending a hint to Mr. Sheppard, the person most concerned.

But that deal is a dead one, remarked the great fielder, "for I will not play with the Chicago team under any circumstances. My main reason is that I do not care for the west and never could do myself justice in a western city where the fans have peculiar ways of showing their feelings during contests."

Unless a change is made in that deal whereby I shall play with an eastern organization I will surely be found with the independent league next season."

Columbia Will Hold Games.

Despite the confused athletic situation at Columbia university, the annual athletic meet of the association will be held in New York in Madison Square Garden on Jan. 26. Circumstances which have arisen have in no way interfered with the plans of Manager J. R. Hoyt. Arrangements are under way for the meeting of the best men of the east and west, and present plans call for an A. A. U. one mile championship.

BIG BATTLESHIP BADLY TANGLED

"Fighting Bob" Evans' Squadron Mixes Up With Little Mud Bank.

KENTUCKY GOES TO HOSPITAL

Vessels on Way to Hampton Roads Encounter Ebb Tide and Wind in New York Harbor, One Boat Losing Its Entire Port Rail.

New York, Jan. 8.—An ebb tide, the west wind, and a foolish little mudbank in the lower bay entered into a conspiracy against the United States navy Sunday and played havoc with its pride, "Fighting Bob" Evans' battleship squadron.

The tangle occurred just while the squadron was picking its way out of New York harbor on the way to Hampton roads.

The squadron, consisting of five first class battleships, the flower of the navy, left Tompkinsville at 11:10 o'clock. Rear Admiral Evans, on the flagship Maine, was in command, and Rear Admiral Davis commanded the second division.

The squadron proceeded in the following order: Maine, Kentucky, Kearsarge, Alabama, and Illinois.

The Maine was the only vessel which carried a pilot. It flew the signal, "Follow flagship."

In close formation, 300 yards apart, the battleships turned into the main ship channel. There was an ebb tide which, raised the twelve knot speed of their screws to about fourteen knots. A good wind was blowing from the west. This gave the battleships a tendency to swing toward the east bank, a sudden shoal with a mud bottom.

Swings Toward Mud Bank.

The end of this bank reaches into the channel at a point between Swinburne island and Coney island. The rear of the squadron, extending out like a string of barges, had swung too far in toward this bank. The Maine passed it, but the Kentucky suddenly went aground and was jammed tight in the mud before the engines could reverse.

The Kearsarge, only 1,200 feet behind, saw the Kentucky stop suddenly and go aground. The Kearsarge was then too far to the east to risk turning westward into the main channel. As the event proved, it probably would have struck the Kentucky had it tried. The navigating officer, sheered the Kearsarge to port to avoid a collision, but in doing so drove the battleship on the mud.

Behind this tangle came the Alabama, Admiral Davis' flagship, with Capt. S. P. Conolly in command. The Alabama's navigating officer saw the two vessels stop before him and knew they were aground. He turned out into the open water to starboard, hoping to clear. The space was not enough, however, and wind and tide were against him. He passed clear of the Kearsarge, which had gone farther inshore before grounding, but the port bow of the Alabama caught the starboard quarter of the Kentucky and raked it. Just a fraction of a second in the turn of the wheel prevented the Alabama from ramming the Kentucky at fourteen knots.

As it was, the Alabama carried away the Kentucky's port rail and all belonging to it from stern to superstructure, and tore away the davits of the captain's gig, even to the heavy steel stanchions into which the davits are set. Of the gig itself, it left nothing but a piece of the bog.

The impact bent in the upper steel plates in the hull of the Kentucky for a distance of about ten feet. The steel doors, which close the port of the after gun, went by the board. There probably was some additional damage done to the hull and screws.

The Alabama lost only the steel doors of its forward six inch gun on the port bow. The plates which protect the gun were bent, and the gun itself probably dismantled. At least the gun dropped and hugged the ship's side, as though it were not feeling well. A hole about a foot in diameter was punched through the plating just under the anchor.

Officers of the Alabama saw their vessel was in no danger. They got it into open water and stood by to help. "Emergency quarters" was sounded on the Kentucky, but after inspection Capt. Barry was able to report to the admiral that his ship was not taking in water. The Maine and Illinois, which had escaped the tangle, went on and have to outside the Hook, leaving the Kearsarge and Kentucky aground in the mud on the east bank. The tide was rising by that time and the fix did not look like a bad idea. The sister ships kept thrashing the water with their screws, and Rear Admiral Davis got the navy yard by wireless, and asked for tugs. Rear Admiral Coghlan sent down three. Before they arrived the two vessels had pulled themselves off.

The Kearsarge shook itself and found it was all right, then went outside to join the others.

But the Kentucky acted like a ship.

MUSIC TO AWAKEN CARNEGIE

Steel King, Risen Daily as Hyman Bent From Hyde Organ.

Andrew Carnegie is awakened every morning by music, says the New York Herald. Just as the clock strikes 8 each day the first notes of "Lead, Kindly Light," or "Silent Night," his two favorites, roll out of the pipes of an immense organ in his home in Fifth avenue, rousing the steel king for the day and starting the machinery of the household to work.

Whether Mr. Carnegie wakes when the first bars are played or whether he is gradually roused from slumber depends, he says, on how tired he is. At any rate he believes in being brought back to consciousness by the music of some hymn he loves, so that his first thoughts will be restful, soothing and give him inspiration for the day.

When living in his castle at Skibo, Scotland, he is awakened fifteen minutes earlier each day by music, but not by the organ, for three musicians, with big pipes, stand under his window and skirl ballads that he likes to hear. At 8 o'clock they depart with a native air, which the organist takes up and works into the hymns of which Mr. Carnegie is so passionately fond. The instrument in his Fifth avenue house is played by Walter C. Gale, organist of the Broadway tabernacle, in New York, every morning, Sunday included, and for the last four years he has awakened Mr. Carnegie daily by playing hymns.

As a surprise for Christmas and a token of his respect for the man, Mr. Gale and the tabernacle choir went to Mr. Carnegie's home on Sunday afternoon (Dec. 24) and sang for two hours. To make the surprise complete Mrs. Carnegie was taken into the plans and got the choir, thirty in all, into the dining room, and they began to sing "Silent Night" before the master of the household knew of their presence.

Resting quietly in an armchair, he sat up quickly, every nerve full of energy, as the first bar of the hymn he loved floated through the big rooms. As if perturbed he waited until he could place the direction from which the singing came and then, with bowed head, he made his way to the dining room and waited in a corner until they had finished. They sang ten hymns and Christmas carols to his delight, and when they stopped he shook hands with each one, thanked each and wished all a "Merry Christmas."

ERYSIPELAS.

There are many theories in regard to the cause of erysipelas. One writer of repute classes it as an "acute, specific, infectious disease, with inflammation of the derma (skin) and subcutaneous tissues," which is substantially correct as applied to the common form of the disease, which usually attacks the face only. There is another kind, however, which is technically termed cellulitis, in which there is deep-seated pain on account of the inflamed and apparently caked condition of the deeper tissues. I remember an attack of this character which once came under my observation. The pain was apparently right over the appendix, and the patient came to me badly frightened on account of the family physician having suggested appendicitis and a surgical operation. Not being willing to trust myself in opposition to his physician, I went with him to a skillful surgeon and asked his opinion, and after a careful examination he said that the appendix was not involved, but that a catarrhal condition of the bowels, with a temporary attack of constipation, had caused inflammation at the head of the caecum, which a saline cathartic and active exercise would overcome. As soon as the patient was convinced that surgery was unnecessary, he was ready for rational treatment. The case was one of cellulitis, and of this he was quickly convinced when I attempted to manipulate the flesh of the abdomen. Two thorough treatments with an external application for the reduction of the inflammation cured the case. Deep massage, with thorough hot fomentations or an antiphlogistine plaster will usually cure all such cases. For the other kind of erysipelas I can commend the treatment of the Home Health Club, and also the following which was sent by an active club member:

"Dear Dr. Reeder: The following is a Russian cure for erysipelas, called a 'cure by sympathy.' Papa went to the textile mills at Reval and other places in Russia to overlook machinery. The cold seemed to strike his face, and he had, for the first and only time in his life, erysipelas. The maid called the doctor, who made a new red flannel (not white, must be red) mask with holes for eyes, nose and mouth. Then he rubbed two large pieces of common lump chalk together until it all was reduced to fine powder. Not a particle of grit or lump must be found in it. Doctor then told papa to lie down, and close eyes and mouth, then he spread thickly the powdered chalk over the entire face and parts affected, at the same time chanting or charming, for the Russians are superstitious, over the chalked face. He then placed the red flannel mask, tied on with string, and a pleasing, cooling sensation soon came. As this sensation passed, the mask was taken off, when it was found the chalk had disappeared. The face was again covered with powdered chalk, and mask put on and repeated as was required. In a few days he was better and out of doors in the extreme cold, again attending to business. No medicine given, but papa paid his doctor's bill with thankfulness. I have myself cured cases of erysipelas on a leg and on a foot by this means without chanting. Brother followed the ice-breaking boat to Russia to papa for his improvement on leaving school, and the cold gave him erysipelas in his leg, and the doctor cured him also by the use of chalk and red flannel, but it must be the proper thick, furry, red, all-wool flannel, not cotton sold for and called flannel."

I trust that many who suffer with erysipelas will find the Russian method valuable. It should be harmless in any event, and is certainly not expensive.

CLUB NOTES.

If Miss A. B. of Wisconsin, who inclosed 25 cents in postage in her letter, will write again, giving name and address in full, I will very cheerfully comply with her request.

Indiana.—Dr. David H. Reeder, La Porte, Ind.—Dear Doctor: I have been an eager and appreciative reader of your lectures since their first appearance in this paper, and especially was I delighted with the lectures on plants and their medicinal value.

When I was a young girl, many a long walk I took with my mother through fields and woods, gathering herbs and roots and barks, which were to be the family medicines in case of sickness during the year to come. She always gathered most things in August and September, but roots in early spring.

My mother raised 12 children to manhood and womanhood, and called a doctor only once. Then she got frightened in a case of typhoid fever, but she had it so well broken up that the doctor made but one visit, and said there was no need of his coming at all. He was an honest doctor. We are glad that there are many such.

Will you kindly give me the formula for compound sirup of gentian, what you call "the good old herb remedy?" I suppose you have given it in some of your lectures; I meant to have kept them all, but we have moved from the farm to the town home, and somehow some of the papers are destroyed. Wishing you long life and happiness, I am, Mrs. R.

I am especially glad to know that you are interested in herb remedies, because that is getting close to nature, and following out the plan which all should follow in the treatment of disease. You are to be congratulated in being a member of such a large family, who were so well raised. My own mother bore 12 children; and ten of us are still living. I am very proud of the fact that I am a member of such a large family. The formula for compound gentian sirup was just very recently given in Club Notes, and I believe you will have no trouble in finding the lecture.

Minneapolis.—Dr. David H. Reeder, La Porte, Ind.—Dear Doctor: What can I do to warm up my feet? It is impossible to keep them warm in winter. They are nearly always cold, and often feel as though they were in ice water from the foot joint to the sole of the foot, which is very disagreeable.

What are the requirements for becoming a nurse in this country, and what is the age limit? I have several recipes for home remedies; have as yet not tried them—wonder if they would be of value if I sent them to you? Thanking you in advance for reply, I am, Sincerely, C. H.

The best method of home treatment for cold or clammy feet is to use the hot-and-cold-water treatment. First bathe the feet thoroughly for half an hour or more in hot water—as hot as you can bear in a bucket or other receptacle, so that it can be filled with water to the knees; then plunge them for a few seconds, 10 or 15, in cold water, take them out, and rub briskly dry, putting on warm, dry stockings; this may be done in the morning upon rising. I think you will find this treatment all that is necessary. The cold water alone for only 10 or 15 seconds every morning, and then a brisk rubbing will give the desired relief in many cases.

For full particulars in regard to requirements for becoming a nurse, how to proceed, etc., you should write to some good hospital, training school, or physician in connection with such institution in your own city. The age limit is usually something like 20 to 35 years. I trust this will be sufficient information in reply to your query in this direction. I would be glad to have you send the recipes referred to, and perhaps I can make use of them in Club Notes.

Oklahoma.—Dr. David H. Reeder, La Porte, Ind.—Dear Sir: I read your articles pertaining to the Home Health Club. Also your answer to Mrs. R. E.'s letter asking a few questions on excessive fat. You advised her to practice the method described in pamphlet No. 1 of the Club lectures. Does it also treat on large stomach and hips? Respectfully, Mrs. E. E.

Pamphlet No. 1 contains a lecture on the subject of obesity, and I believe that you can reduce your weight to the proper proportion by following the instructions given therein.

All readers of this publication are at liberty to inquire for any information pertaining to the subject of health. Address all communications to the Home Health Club, or Dr. David H. Reeder, La Porte, Ind., giving name and address in full, with at least four cents in postage.

NEW CRIME DISCOVERED.

New York Magistrate Promptly Discharges Man Accused of "Kligging."

"Kligging" is a new crime. Its discoverer is Max Halpin, a special policeman living at No. 138 Essex street, who watches over a score of jewelry shops in Ludlow street at night, says the New York Times. The other morning Halpin saw Leo Giroki (such was the name he gave), a musician, "kligging" in front of the shop at No. 126 Ludlow street, arrested him and later arraigned him before Magistrate Moss.

This is what developed during Magistrate Moss' investigation:

The Magistrate to Halpin—What is the charge? A.—Kligging.

Q.—What? A.—Kligging, I say.

Q.—You arrested this man for that?

A.—Yes, all myself.

Q.—How long have you been a special policeman? A.—Since I came to this country.

Q.—How long is that? A.—A few weeks. Everybody is a policeman when he first comes to this country. They taught me that in Russia.

Magistrate Moss (after taking some smelling salts)—What did the prisoner do? A.—He was looking in a jeweler's window.

Q.—Is that all? A.—Yes.

Magistrate Moss—Well, don't let me hear of you arresting anybody for "kligging" again.

GERMAN TRADE $300,000,000.

Bureau of Statistics Issues Report on Commerce Now Imperiled.

Washington, Jan. 8.—Trade between the United States and Germany, whose commercial relations are now the subject of negotiation between the two governments, aggregated in the fiscal year 1905 over $300,000,000. A report, issued by the bureau of statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor, says: "The imports from Germany were $118,000,000 in value, and exceeded the imports from that country in any earlier year. The exports to Germany were $194,000,000 in value, and exceeded our exports to that country in any earlier year except 1904, in which the total was a little over $214,000,000. This decrease in 1905 occurred in raw cotton, and was due to a fall in price, since the quantity in 1905 was greater than in 1904. Imports from Germany increased $37,000,000 in the period from 1895 to 1905, and exports to that country increased $102,000,000 in the same time." Germany stands second in the order of magnitude of America's trade with foreign countries, both as to imports and exports.

WHAT KIND OF FINANCIER ARE YOU?

To sell a lot of ground for $50 less than it would bring if $5 were expended in advertising it is very common—if not very wise—financiering.

To sell a shop or store for $2,000 when $10 worth of advertising would have found the man willing to pay $500 more for it—that is "near-sighted" financiering.

To allow a house or apartment to remain tenantless for three months, when $3 worth of advertising would have rented it in three days—is not a GOOD WAY to "manage property," but it is a very usual way!

Through all the little affairs of daily life we are apt to thus trample upon all of the Financial Commandments—making ourselves the poorer, and nobody else especially the richer.
